Mr Duthie could not think of anyone that was likely to take the cargo over. At laet a happy thought struck him. He said he knew one gentleman who dealt lairgely in. brimstone, and if the captain would try him he might succeed in getting the cargo disposed of. He accordingly sent him off to the minister in question. The reception the poor caiptain got may be.readily imagined. Nevertheless--so, at least, story.wind- up--from that day forth thetminister was known ae Brimstone Johnnie. At the time of which I write, from the foot of Commerce Street down to opposite the London boat shed, there was nothing but a wilderness of stoneyards and loge of wood. The Great North of Scotland Railway was unheard of, and it was the middle of the fifties before even the Northern Agricultural Company came into existence. The Duthiee...
